

Cookie Policy

This Cookie Policy explains how Radwell International Inc (“Company”, “we”, “us” and “our”) uses cookies and similar technologies to recognise you when you visit our websites at: www.radwell.com, www.radwell.co.uk, www.radwell.ca, www.radwell.de (“websites”). It explains what these technologies are and why we use them, as well as your rights to control our use of them. This Cookie Policy should be read together with our Privacy Policy and our Terms of Use.

What Do Cookies Do?

Cookies collect anonymous data about how visitors use our site, which is then used to help improve the site. Example data collected includes the number of site visitors, where visitors come to the site from and pages visited.

What Are Cookies?

A cookie is like a memory for a computer, a cookie is a small file containing a string of characters that is sent to your computer when you visit a website. When you visit the site again, the cookie allows that site to recognise your browser. Cookies may store user preferences and other information. You can configure your browser to refuse all cookies or to indicate when a cookie is being sent. However, some website features or services may not function properly without cookies.

Cookies are incredibly useful – they allow modern websites to work the way people have come to expect with every increasing level of personalisation and rich interactive functionality.

First-Party Cookies and Third-Party Cookies

Cookies set by the website owner (in this case, www.radwell.com, www.radwell.co.uk, www.radwell.ca, www.radwell.de) are called “first party cookies”. Cookies set by parties other than the website owner are called “third party cookies”. Third party cookies enable third party features or functionality to be provided on or through the website (e.g. like advertising, interactive content and analytics). The parties that set these third-party cookies can recognise your computer both when it visits the websites in question and when it visits certain other websites.

Why Do We Use cookies?

We use cookies for several reasons. Some cookies are required for technical reasons for our websites to operate, and we refer to these as “essential” or “strictly necessary” cookies, other cookies are to enhance your experience on our website. Third parties serve cookies through our websites for advertising, analytics and other purposes. This is described in more detail below.

The specific types of first and third-party cookies served through our websites and the purposes they perform are described below (please note that the specific cookies served may vary depending on the specific Online Properties you visit):

How We Use Cookies

We collect information about your computer, including your IP address, operating system and browser type, for system administration and in order to create reports. This is statistical data about our users' browsing actions and patterns and does not identify any individual.

The cookies in use on our site include Google Analytics. Google Analytics is a web analytics tool that helps website owners understand how visitors engage with their website. Google Analytics customers can view a variety of reports about how visitors interact with their website so that they can improve it.

Like many services, Google Analytics uses cookies to track visitor interactions as in our case, where they are used to collect information about how visitors use our site. We then use the information to compile reports and to help us improve our site.

Cookies contain information that is transferred to your computer's hard drive. These cookies are used to store information, such as the time that the current visit occurred, whether the visitor has been to the site before and what site referred the visitor to the web page.

In addition, most advertising networks offer you a way to opt out of targeted advertising. If you would like to find out more information, for the USA and Canada please visit here and for Europe please visit here.

Google Analytics Cookies Explained

Google Analytics collects information anonymously. As a user navigates between web pages, Google Analytics provides website owners JavaScript tags (libraries) to record information about the page a user has seen.

It reports website trends without identifying individual visitors. You can opt out of Google Analytics without affecting how you visit our site – for more information on opting out of being tracked by Google Analytics across all websites please visit Google page

Google Analytics supports three JavaScript libraries (tags) for measuring website usage: gtag.js, analytics.js, and ga.js. The following sections describe how each use cookies.

gtag.js and analytics.js – cookie usage

The analytics.js JavaScript library is part of Universal Analytics and uses first party cookies to:

- Distinguish unique users
- Throttle the request rate

When using the recommended JavaScript snippet, gtag.js and analytics.js set cookies on the highest level domain they can. For example, if your website address is blog.example.co.uk, analytics.js will set the cookie domain to example.co.uk. Setting cookies on the highest-level domain possible allows users to be tracked across subdomains without any extra configuration.

Note: gtag.js and analytics.js do not require setting cookies to transmit data to Google Analytics.

ga.js – Cookie Usage

The ga.js JavaScript library uses first-party cookies to:

- Determine which domain to measure
- Distinguish unique users
- Throttle the request rate
- Remember the number and time of previous visits
- Remember traffic source information
- Determine the start and end of a session
- Remember the value of visitor-level custom variables

Overall, cookies help us provide you with a better website, by enabling us to monitor which pages you find useful and which you do not. A cookie in no way gives us access to your computer or any information about you, other than the data you choose to share with us.

Other Tracking Technologies

Cookies are the most well-known and common type of web tracking technologies. However, many websites, advertisers, and analytic tools use other types of technologies to track users or monitor website performance.

Accepting or Opting Out of Cookies

You can choose to accept or decline cookies. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser setting to decline cookies if you prefer. This may prevent you from taking full advantage of the website. You will be prompted on your first visit to our website with a pop-up on screen alerting you, letting you know that we use cookies on this website at this point you have the choice to accept or decline cookies.

Links to Other Websites

Our website may contain links to other websites of interest. However, once you have used these links to leave our site, you should note that we do not have any control over that other website. Therefore, we cannot be responsible for the protection and privacy of any information which you provide whilst visiting such sites and such sites are not governed by this policy. You should exercise caution and look at the privacy statement applicable to the website in question.
